Dai-ichi Guard

Term rider attached to Dai-ichi Life Pro that adds 100% of the sum insured for death or total permanent disability at low additional premium.

Dai-ichi Guard is a protection rider from Dai-ichi Life Insurance Myanmar. It adds a further 100% of the sum insured for death or total permanent disability on top of the base Dai-ichi Life Pro cover, which is why it is presented as doubling the customer's protection. Because it carries no savings or cash-back element, the additional premium is small relative to the extra cover it buys.

Document status: this is an illustrative sample product document prepared for the InsureAssist demo. Entry age, policy term, premium term, sum insured, and the benefit percentage follow the published product highlights of Dai-ichi Life Insurance Myanmar. Waiting periods, exclusions, and claim steps are illustrative examples written for the demo and are not official policy wording. This document is not a policy contract, a premium quotation, or an underwriting decision.

Eligibility

Entry age is 18 to 59 years old at rider start.

Policy term is 5 to 15 years and the premium payment term matches the policy term.

The minimum sum insured is MMK 5,000,000.

Dai-ichi Guard is available only as a rider purchased alongside a Dai-ichi Life Pro base policy. It cannot be sold as a standalone policy, and the rider term cannot run past the end of the base policy term.

Benefits

- Death or total permanent disability benefit of 100% of the sum insured, paid in addition to the base Dai-ichi Life Pro benefit.
- Combined with the base plan, total death and total permanent disability protection becomes 200% of the sum insured.
- Additional protection at low cost, because the rider carries no living benefit and no maturity value.
- Rider premiums may be declared as personal income tax relief, subject to Myanmar tax law.

Coverage

The rider pays a lump sum on death or total permanent disability of the life insured during the rider term. It pays once, and the rider then ends.

Dai-ichi Guard is pure protection. It has no living benefit, no cash-back, no maturity benefit, and no surrender value at any point in the term.

The rider is tied to the base policy. It ends when the base Dai-ichi Life Pro policy matures, is surrendered, or lapses, even if the rider term has time remaining.

Illustrative for this demo: total permanent disability must have continued for at least 6 consecutive months before the benefit is assessed, and a claim should be notified within 90 days of the event.

Premium and Payment

Illustrative for this demo: the rider premium is collected together with the base Dai-ichi Life Pro premium on the same due date and the same payment frequency. It is not billed separately.

The 30-day grace period and the reinstatement rules of the base policy apply to the rider as well. A lapse of the base policy lapses the rider.

Exclusions

Dai-ichi Guard does not pay:

- Death by suicide within 13 months of the rider start date or of any reinstatement date.
- Total permanent disability resulting from self-inflicted injury or attempted suicide.
- Any claim arising from material misstatement or non-disclosure of health, occupation, or lifestyle facts at application.
- Claims arising from war, invasion, or active participation in armed conflict or civil commotion.
- Claims arising while the life insured is committing or attempting to commit a criminal offence.

Dai-ichi Guard does not cover critical illness. Cancer, kidney disease, lung disease, and similar conditions are handled by the Dai-ichi CI Plus rider, not by this rider.

Dai-ichi Guard does not reimburse medical bills, hospital charges, or accident medical expenses.

Agents must never describe this rider as a savings plan or imply it returns money if no claim occurs.

Agent Guidance

Use Dai-ichi Guard when the customer accepts the base Dai-ichi Life Pro plan but the death benefit alone would not carry the family through. Typical cases are a sole earner, a customer with dependent children, or a customer with an outstanding loan.

Frame the value as cover per kyat of premium. The rider buys the same 100% of the sum insured as the base plan for a fraction of the base premium, because nothing is being saved on the customer's behalf.

Be explicit that nothing comes back if there is no claim. A customer who wants money returned should be directed to the base plan's living and maturity benefits instead.

Where the customer wants both higher death cover and critical illness money, present Dai-ichi Guard together with Dai-ichi CI Plus for up to 300% total cover.
